

Heat Exchangers (780)

High-performance thermal units offer maximum transfer rates even with highly viscous, difficult-to-process materials. Used in a wide range of process applications, the heat exchangers require less space, less energy and less time to process. Static mixer technology offers the highest available heat transfer coefficients for fast, uniform heat transfer. The heat exchangers are designed to provide heat transfer rates of three to seven times greater than conventional empty tubes.

Source URL (retrieved on 01/29/2015 - 5:34pm):

<http://www.chem.info/news/2006/08/heat-exchangers-780>