

UK's new "green" government says to cut its CO2 10 percent

Reuters

LONDON (Reuters) - Britain's central government will cut its emissions of climate-warming carbon by 10 percent in the next 12 months, while speeding up the wider move to a low-carbon economy, the new UK Prime Minister David Cameron said on Friday.

"I don't want to hear warm words about the environment. I want to see real action. I want this to be the greenest government ever," the Conservative leader of Britain's first coalition government since 1945 told staff at the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC).

"If we do this, we'll cut the government's energy bills by hundreds of millions of pounds ... In fact, we've made a good start. Someone pointed out when you mix blue with yellow - you get green."

SOURCE [1]

Source URL (retrieved on 02/28/2015 - 11:38pm):

<http://www.chem.info/news/2010/05/uks-new-green-government-says-cut-its-co2-10-percent>

Links:

[1] <http://feeds.reuters.com/~r/reuters/USgreenbusinessNews/~3/VJQtbsjY3U0/idUSTRE64D37720100514>