

TexCom, Inc. Announces Plant Expansion

The Associated Press

<http://texcomresources.com> () —

TexCom, Inc. (PINKSHEETS: TEXT) ("TexCom" or the "Company"), an environmental services company for the oil and gas industry, today announced that it is expanding the operating area of its M.B. Environmental Services waste disposal facility in Chambers County, Texas.

The expansion is planned to improve the offloading efficiency for customers delivering materials generated by the exploration and production of oil and gas, reducing the time in which trucks are onsite.

C.E.O. and Chairman Lou Ross stated, "Improving efficiency in offloading and handling our customers' class II disposal needs will provide benefits for both our customers and ourselves. As well, the additional temporary storage capacity that will be derived from the expansion and additional receiving facilities will allow us to operate continuously without affecting our customers. We simply have a need to be able to offload more trucks at greater speed in order to serve our customers efficiently."

About TexCom

TexCom, Inc., headquartered in Houston, Texas, is a growth-oriented company with its primary focus on the disposal of nonhazardous wastes and production of biodiesel. Domestically, TexCom disposes of nonhazardous materials generated by oil and gas exploration and production and is expanding its interests in disposal of nonhazardous industrial wastewater, serving the refining and petrochemical industries.
