The Associated Press

Huntsman plans to expand one of its production lines in Alabama, the chemical manufacturer said Wednesday.

The Salt Lake City company said it will launch a multi-million dollar engineering study at the McIntosh facility with the goal of increasing capacity for multifunctional resins. Those resins are used by the aerospace and composite industries.

McIntosh is about 40 miles north of Mobile off the Gulf of Mexico.

Huntsman Corp. also expanded production capabilities this year at its Monthey, Switzerland facility.
